Kevin Loew is managing partner of the Los Angeles office of Waters Kraus Paul & Siegel, where he leads the firm's representation of individuals and families harmed by toxic exposures, dangerous products and unsafe conditions, as well as victims of sexual abuse.

A native of Los Angeles, Kevin has spent his career representing people across California and the nation who have suffered serious injuries and illnesses as a result of corporate misconduct and toxic exposure. He is a veteran trial lawyer who has obtained record-setting verdicts and settlements in asbestos-exposure cases, including results that have earned recognition among VerdictSearch's Top 100 Verdicts, the National Law Journal's Top Verdicts, and California's Million Dollar Verdicts published in The Recorder.

Kevin plays a leading role in developing litigation strategy and guiding the firm's work in emerging areas of complex litigation. He has helped lead the firm's efforts on behalf of countertop fabrication and installation workers diagnosed with silicosis after breathing silica dust on the job. That also includes the firm's work on behalf of California wildfire victims, survivors of sexual abuse seeking justice from institutions and organizations that failed to protect them, and aviation and technology workers whose children suffered birth injuries after prenatal exposure to toxic chemicals.
